The purpose of this ISAG webinar is to review public health responses to COVID19 in Ireland and across Europe. What did we do right, what did we miss, and what do we need to mount an effective public health response to this pandemic.

Title:

Public health and COVID19 a global and local perspective.

Chair: Anthony Staines, ISAG member.

Speakers:

Martin McKee - Professor of European Public Health at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine - Public health responses to COVID19 - what happened in Europe.

Marie Casey – Public Health Specialist, Ireland, Public health responses to COVID19 – what happened in Ireland.

In addition we will cover the current situation on COVID19 in Ireland, with particular reference to children, and review some of the possible impacts of new variants, such as P1 (first isolated in Brazil) on COVID19 in Ireland.

Let this lockdown be our last.

We can start living again.

The ISAG (Independent Scientific Advocacy Group) is a multi-disciplinary, all-island group of scientists, academics and researchers, who have come together to advocate for a SARS-CoV-2 elimination strategy for Ireland.
